RISING AFTER THE STORM

Farming has always been about more than just raising crops or livestock. It's a lifelong dedication to the land, to family, and to community. This year, Hurricane Helene put that dedication to the test like never before. In just a few hours, the storm wiped out entire fields, toppled years of timber growth, and caused devastation that we're still struggling to comprehend. It wasn't just our fields that were affected—barns, equipment, and even our homes have been damaged or destroyed.

For Georgia's farmers, the impact of Hurricane Helene is not just financial; it's deeply personal. The work we do isn't measured only in dollars and cents—it's in the pride of cultivating the land, the sense of purpose in raising animals, and the satisfaction of feeding and clothing our nation. When that is lost, it isn't just a financial blow—it's a blow to our way of life. The storm didn't just destroy crops and buildings; it uprooted our plans, our dreams, and our sense of security.

But there's one thing that hasn't changed: our resolve. We are farmers, and while we may be weathered by this storm, we are still strong. We know that the only way to face a challenge like this is together—with the support of our neighbors, friends, and community.

That's why we are launching The Weathered But Strong: Hurricane Relief Fund.

This fund is about more than financial support—it's about hope. It's about helping farmers get back on their feet, rebuild their barns, replant their fields, and continue the work we all love.

Our initial goal was to raise $1 million to provide direct assistance to farmers impacted by Hurricane Helene. However, after further assessment we realized the need is much greater - now we will raise $1.5M between for and the end of the year. EVERY SINGLE DOLLAR RAISED WILL SUPPORT THOSE WHO HAVE EXPERIENCED DEVASTATING LOSSES. These funds will fill the gaps not met by other forms of aid, helping to repair fencing, restore livestock, and get Georgia farmers back on their feet.

We are committed to ensuring that 100% of your donations go to those in need.

We understand that recovery won't happen overnight. It will take time to restore the land and rebuild what's been lost. But we also know that farmers are some of the most resilient people out there. We've faced bad weather, tough markets, and countless other challenges. Through it all, we keep going. With your support, we will rebuild our farms, our homes, and our communities. We will keep working the land, caring for our animals, and providing food for our tables and yours.

I invite you to join us in this effort. Whether you are able to contribute financially or help us spread the word, every action makes a difference. We are stronger together, and with your help, we will come through this stronger than before.

“We are farmers, and while we may be weathered by this storm, we are still strong.”

TESTIMONIALS

Washington County Pecan Producer, Willis Hartley has approximately 2,100 trees on 180 acres, and lost approximately 75% of them. Hartley and his son, Jason, were four weeks from harvest.

"I saw the damage, you know, it's heartbreaking. I just sat down and cried. I had to work this long to accumulate this orchard, make it look like it did, , and then lose it. Yeah, it's terrible," Hartley said.

-GFB News Reporter, Jay Stone

"I got pretty bad damage to my grain facility. I've got some other infrastructure buildings messed up. I've got fertilizer tanks turned over. My assets in terms of my land, this will be a scar that we'll be able to see for a long time."

-Taylor Brett, Johnson County Farmer

"We are thankful we didn't have birds when the storm struck. While we do have our chicken houses insured, they were older houses. We've been told we'll receive about $100,000 per house, but the cost to build a new chicken house is about $500,000."

-Lori Carter, Appling County Poultry Producer

HURRICANE HELENE'S IMPACT ON AG IN GEORGIA

"This year, Hurricane Helene put that dedication to the test like never before. In just a few hours, the storm wiped out entire fields, toppled years of timber growth, and caused devastation that we're still struggling to comprehend. It wasn't just our fields that were affected—barns, equipment, and even our homes have been damaged or destroyed."

- GFB President Tom McCall

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE PROCESS

Georgia producers impacted by Hurricane Helene can apply for financial assistance grants starting in November until December 31, 2024. To qualify, applicants must meet specific criteria, including being agricultural producers with losses directly caused by the hurricane, residing in designated disaster areas or adjacent counties, and holding a valid GATE card. Applications will be submitted online through the Georgia Foundation for Agriculture website, and eligibility will be overseen by the Directors of the Georgia Foundation for Agriculture Board. Funds will be distributed to help cover losses not met by other aid.

Eligibility Criteria for Hurricane Relief Financial Assistance

- Losses Due to Hurricane Helene: Applicants must be Georgia agricultural producers who have incurred agriculture-related losses or expenses as a direct result of Hurricane Helene.
- Disaster Area Designation: Applicants must reside in a county or contiguous to a county declared through disaster declaration. This designation is forthcoming as the estimated losses are determined.
- GATE Card Requirement: Applicants must hold a current GATE (Georgia Agricultural Tax Exemption) card issued by the Georgia Department of Agriculture.

Financial Assistance Determination

- Application Submission: Applications must be submitted online through the Georgia Foundation for Agriculture website by December 31, 2024. Application link is forthcoming.
- Approval Oversight: Eligibility will be determined by the Directors of the Georgia Foundation for Agriculture Board, based on location and the percentage of loss incurred.
- Funds Distribution: 100% of donations collected will be distributed to farmers impacted by Hurricane Helene.

The Georgia Foundation for Agriculture will distribute funds to eligible farmers that have suffered agricultural losses, met Foundation prerequisites, have applied for assistance and have been screened by members of the Georgia Foundation for Agriculture Board. These funds are intended to fill existing gaps not being met by the other areas of assistance. Losses covered by the Foundation assistance may include but are not limited to fencing, crop and livestock.

MENTAL HEALTH SUPPORT FOR GA FARMERS

The recent hurricane has deeply impacted our farming communities, with many farmers facing crop losses of 50% to 100%. As the initial adrenaline fades, the reality of financial strain is setting in, leading to a rise in mental health challenges in an already challenging industry. Recognizing the urgent need to support farmer well-being, we are providing access to mental health resources, a peer support community, and financial relief grants—offering a crucial lifeline to help our farmers recover and rebuild.

Peer-to-Peer Support

- To help as we are fundraising and beyond, we're providing access to essential mental health resources, including Togetherall, a free, anonymous online support community specifically designed for those in agriculture. In partnership with the American Farm Bureau, Togetherall offers:
 - 24/7 Peer-to-Peer Support: Farmers can connect with others who truly understand farm life and its unique challenges.
 - Family & Individual Counseling: Access ag-friendly, confidential counseling services.
 - Financial & Legal Consultation: Receive guidance on finances and legal concerns, major stressors for the farming community.
 - Wellbeing Tools: Explore courses and resources tailored to building resilience and mental health.
 - Complete Confidentiality: Every interaction is secure, private, and anonymous.
- Through our local county Farm Bureaus, we're rolling out programs to empower these networks to support farmers within their own communities.

The Importance of The Relief Fund Grants On Mental Health

- Immediate Financial Relief: Grants provide faster support than government aid, which can take up to two years, helping farmers stay afloat after significant crop losses.
- Reduces Stress and Anxiety: Timely financial assistance eases the uncertainty, restoring a sense of control and stability during recovery.
- Supports Essential Needs: Funds can cover urgent expenses—repairing equipment, feeding livestock, and keeping operations running—enabling farmers to focus on rebuilding.
- Strengthens Community and Well-being: Knowing they have community support boosts morale, providing both financial and emotional resilience to face future challenges.

Together, these resources and grants can help ease the emotional and financial burdens our farmers face, providing a vital lifeline for recovery and resilience. Farming is tough, but there's strength in reaching out—and through these tools and our supportive network, no farmer has to face this alone.
